

107TH CONGRESS
2^D SESSION

H. CON. RES. 349

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER 17, 2002

Received

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Calling for effective measures to end the sexual exploitation of refugees.

Whereas the United Nations and organizations engaged in international humanitarian relief periodically receive reports of sexual exploitation of refugees, particularly women and children;

Whereas last year a report commissioned by the United Nations High Commissioner of Refugees and the British organization Save the Children accuses aid workers in Liberia, Sierra Leone, and Guinea of refusing to give food and medicine to young girls unless they perform sexual favors;

Whereas in response to this report the Secretary General of the United Nations denounced sexual exploitation of refugees and called for a full investigation of the humanitarian staff from the agencies involved;

Whereas the charges against aid workers in West Africa are still being investigated and in recent years there have been reports implicating employees of international non-governmental organizations, government agencies responsible for humanitarian response, and peacekeeping forces in sexual exploitation of refugees;

Whereas many of these reports have involved children, some as young as 10 to 12 years of age;

Whereas the insufficiency of food rations in refugee camps has been cited as a primary factor contributing to sexual exploitation;

Whereas refugees are often extremely poor and cut off from employment and other ordinary means of income, so that they can be highly susceptible to demands that they exchange sex for food to help their families survive: and

Whereas the relationship between refugee workers and refugees is a custodial or caregiving relationship in which the custodian or caregiver can exercise substantial power over the life of the other party, and which carries a corresponding risk of abuse: Now, therefore, be it

- 1 Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate

20 sure that humanitarian assistance to refugees
21 provided by the United States is respectful of 22 the human rights of women and children and is 23 distributed in such a way as to minimize the 24 risk of sexual exploitation; and

1 (4) urges the Secretary General, the President,
2 and the executive authorities of all governmental and
3 nongovernmental entities engaged in refugee work to 4 adopt codes of conduct for employees, contractors,
5 and other agents of the United Nations, of the 6 United States Government, and of such govern-
7 mental and nongovernmental entities, respectively,
8 who are engaged in refugee work that strictly pro-
9 hibit sexual relationships between international ref-
10 ugee workers and those entrusted to their care, and 11 to enforce these prohibitions vigorously.

Passed the House of Representatives October 16, 2002.
